profile of participants

project team with a role in governance: management, trainers, facilitators... (2 to 3 people per team on average)

Objectives

For this second training session with a group that knows each other well, we plan to continue the exchanges concerning intercultural encounter, linguistic unlocking and co-development.

A progress report on the research and the state of the places of the practices and expectations of each partner will be realized in order to work on the capacity of distancing with what each one is experiencing, to get out of the mechanisms of action / reaction, change all the more important as the consequences The consequences of the global health crisis and Russia's invasion of Ukraine require imaginative or even "disruptive" in the words of Mariya Gabriel, European Commissioner.

This can be done individually. Some partners have already expressed themselves during the 2021 elections:

- * Improvement of the quality of life in rural areas from the point of view of an association.
- * highlight the differences in territorial governance and analyze their strengths and constraints; identify the postures and skills of the actors; project themselves into the methods of support for leaders to be inspired or strengthen their practice results

Participants wish to leave with the necessary tools and methods to be able to accompany the decision-makers throughout the year 2021/2022 and prepare them for the C3 session knowing how to accompany the analysis of cases thanks to the methods and experiences shared.
